Warning Signs

Recognize that a colleague may be involved in an abusive relationship. See the indications of abuse. Here are some warning signs to look for:

- Change in job performance: poor concentration, errors, slowness, inconsistent work quality.
- An unusual number of phone calls/text messages, strong reactions to those calls/text messages, and/or a reluctance to converse or respond to phone/text messages.
- Co-workers receive insensitive or insulting messages intended for the colleague experiencing abuse.
- Disruptive personal visits to workplace by present or former partner or spouse.
- Questions about whereabouts, company, and activities from a spouse or former spouse.
- Absenteeism or lateness for work.
- Requests for special accommodations such as requests to leave early or to change schedules.
- Reluctance to leave work.
- Obvious injuries such as bruises, black eyes, broken bones, hearing loss — these are often attributed to "falls," "being clumsy," or "accidents."
- Clothing that is inappropriate for the season, such as long sleeves and turtlenecks — also wearing sunglasses and unusually heavy makeup.
- Minimization or denial of harassment or injuries.
- Isolation; unusually quiet and keeping away from others.
- Emotional distress or flatness, tearfulness, depression, or suicidal thoughts.
- Signs of anxiety and fear.
- Sensitivity about home life or hints of trouble at home comments may include references to bad moods, anger, temper, and alcohol or drug abuse.
- Fear of job loss.
- Lack of access to money.

Warning Signs of Abusive Behavior

Someone who is behaving abusively at home may be "invisible" as an abuser at work. Perhaps they are an excellent worker, manager, professional and do not reveal overtly violent behavior in the work environment. Or they may display signs of an abusive temperament:

- Is absent or late related to conflict at home.
- Calls or contacts their partner repeatedly during work.
- Bullies others at work.
- Blames others for problems, especially their partner.
- Denies problems.
- Can't take criticism and often acts defensively when challenged.
- Acts like they are superior and of more value than others in their home.
 - Controls their partner or ex-partner's activities.
