Intro to Site Security

Course Description

Site security is not just about fences and locks. It’s about mindset. It’s about protecting people, property, equipment, and information from both outside threats and internal oversights. This introductory course will cover what site security means, why it matters, common weaknesses and more.