

Wind Hazards

Download latest special report and learn more about Wind Hazards and how to protect workers from getting caught up in a wind gust.

Selling Safety to the Executive Suite

Why does your company spend money on safety? An effective safety program costs money. Your job, as a safety director, is to get the CEO and upper management to come up with the funds to build and maintain such a program. Learn how with our latest whitepaper: Selling Safety to Executives Suites.

Spot the OSHA Violation: Is This a Safe Job for a Worker Working Alone?

train your workers on the hazards of working alone

How Would You Treat Hands Like These?

Train your workers about cold stress hazards and how to prevent them.

Building a Safety Culture by Measuring Results

This desire for measurement and feedback—for keeping score—is critical to how we live our lives. It is also the key to the success of our safety program.

Is This a Safe Way to Clean Ebola-Infected Materials?

Use this photo to train workers about Ebola dangers and how to manage them.

Is This a Safe Way to Use a

Crane?

This is the kind of safety violation you can't afford if you use cranes at your plant.

Is This the Way You Want Your Workers Showing Up for Work?

Train your workers to recognize the signs and protect themselves from the hazards of workplace fatigue.

Spot the OSHA Violation: Is This What You'd Call a Safe Work Environment?

Train your workers about the dangers of combustible dust.

Spot the OSHA Violation: Is What You'd Call an Ergonomically Sound Work Practice?

What can the 3 Stooges teach your workers about MSDs?

Is This What You'd Call an Emergency Exit?

Use this photo of a padlocked fire exit to train workers on emergency response and evacuation.

Planning For Workplace Emergencies and Evacuations

The best way to protect your workers and your business is to expect the unexpected. Use this booklet to guide you when immediate action is necessary.

Is This a Safe Way to Control

Hazardous Energy?

There are at least 3 things wrong with this lockout/tagout arrangement.

Is This a Good Look for a Machine Operator?

Warn workers about the dangers of operating machinery with long or facial hair.

What PPE Are These Workers Missing?

Train your workers to use the right kind of eye protection.

Is This a Safe Way to Jack a Vehicle?

Train your workers how to use jacks safely.

Is This Worker Using the Right PPE?

Although he has almost everything he needs to operate that jackhammer safely, this worker is missing one important piece of PPE.

Does This Worker Have a Reportable Injury?

You don't need an OSHA 300 for an injury that requires only first aid.

Is This a Safe Way to Use an Indoor Heater?

Warn workers that space heaters can cause carbon monoxide poisoning.

Would You Want Your Workers to Drive This Car?

Driving in ice and snow is hard enough when you can see.

Is This Machine Safely Guarded?

The ineffectiveness of this machine guard cost one worker his hand.

Is This Car Safe to Drive?

Use this photo to train your workers about the hazards of winter driving.

Is This How Your Workers Do Electrical Work?

Train your workers and enhance your awareness on electrical safety.

Is This a Safe Way to Work Over Water?

Educate your employees about drowning hazards, personal floatation devices and the DO's and DONT's of water safety.

Is This How You Want Your Workers to Handle Materials?

Train your workers about ergonomics and avoiding musculoskeletal disorders.