Picture This! ‘Scaf-fold’ Could Prove to be Operative Word

When they are working well off the ground, people want to feel secure that what’s supporting them won’t suddenly buckle, resulting in a ride to agony. Would you set foot on a makeshift scaffold made from two ladders lashed together and appearing to be sagging even without a load placed on it? Sadly, someone obviously thought this system would cut it. (Naval Safety Center)